FOURTH EDITION

Lester C. Stone was twenty-seven old and a native of Swampscott. He South only a few months ago as auditor for the Stone & Webster Construction Co. in connection with their railroad enterprises.

The news of his death had not broken to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Stone of Swampscott, at noon yesterday. His mother, J. H. Stone, of Hood Rubber Co., No. 90 N. Street, knows there was no love affair with the matter and the young man had financial troubles. He was a graduate of the Marblehead High School.

GARDNER AND M'KINNON ARE READY FOR BELL

Ready to battle for a king's ransom Jimmy Gardner and Bill McKinnon will test their hitting qualities against each other to-night at the Armory A. A. in a twelve set playlet entitled, "It's a Hot Ole Time; Every Punch Counts."

That something didn't drop the last time these boys came together was the surprise to all those who watched the performance and the same bunch will be in the seat to-night, as they wouldn't miss a repetition of those fierce fistie tactics for many time the price of the best bottled throat gargle.

Gardner himself, who beat McKinnon when the pair met last and stopped Mac's climb up the ladder to fame. It took a lot of games and a lot of money to get Mac back to the business to do the job but this member of the Gardner family was there with bells on and the tangle-fing will be there again to mix it up.

Jimmy had a little mishap up at his training quarters when a fire burned up his mascot fighting trunks, so Ifac should have happened to cop him in one of his spasms of thinking of his hard luck it can be blamed on the fighting kids when Mac and Jimmy get the signal. It's the reputation at stake to-night and was to the under dog.

Gardner has trained conscientiously, and those who have been to see him are satis-

In the opening eight round contest, Milt Mella and Angus McDougall, both of South Boston, will furnish the fun. They are small lads and always put up a speed

Two heavyweights, Andrew Morris of East Boston and Tim Sullivan of Newburyport will engage in the other eight rounds of the bout.

By WILLIAM HOSTER.

CAPE GIRARD, Mo., Oct. 25.—President Taft's lead steamer left at Cape Girard last night to day and down the Mississippi. This was the first trip of the 1200-mile trip. It was a round of hundreds of miles, a President of the Mississippi River town.

The thirteen official boats in the fleet being held for a distance of two miles rounded to, following the example of the steamer and a crowd of spectators. Governors, Senators and Representatives went ashore building the steep out of their eyes, but strong in their determination to see Taft off.

At the Cape Girard, the President was carried to the steamer by a crowd of hundreds of people. The President was carried to the steamer by a crowd of hundreds of people. The President was carried to the steamer by a crowd of hundreds of people.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS: FINANCIAL NEWS FOR INVESTORS LOCAL STOCKS ARE ACTIVE

In the absence of fresh unfavorable news there seems to be a slightly improved tone in the financial markets.

There are many facts that can be used to show the market up or down, but here are a few of the important ones that show the market up.

Although the English budget muddle has been the cause of a slight decline in the market, the fact that the market has been active in the last few days is a sign of improvement.

Far from the advance in the English rate being a sign of speculation, it is a sign of a healthy market. The fact that the market has been active in the last few days is a sign of improvement.

There is undoubtedly a sufficient amount of business in the market to keep it active. The fact that the market has been active in the last few days is a sign of improvement.

A recent advance in the market has been a sign of improvement. The fact that the market has been active in the last few days is a sign of improvement.

Do You Know This Woman?

By T. E. POWERS

But the Country Is Not at Fault, Mr. Brown. The Laws Are Wrong

But to keep out the poor, to turn back mothers because they happen to be as poor as was the mother of Abraham Lincoln, or send away old people because they may not be self-supporting—that is heartlessness and brutality.

Women suffragists are really the MOST UNSELFISH, as they are not the least patriotic, of human beings.

Being a constant reader of your valuable paper, I wish you would please publish these few lines, in answer to Judge Garrison of New Jersey, saying since artificial limbs are so well constructed to day, poor unfortunate Dorothy Melbernott ought not to walk with crutches.

I would be very glad, if you would know how to appreciate some other unfortunate creature, and, as in this particular case, the loss of a leg, I wonder how he'd feel to have his daughter afflicted in this manner.

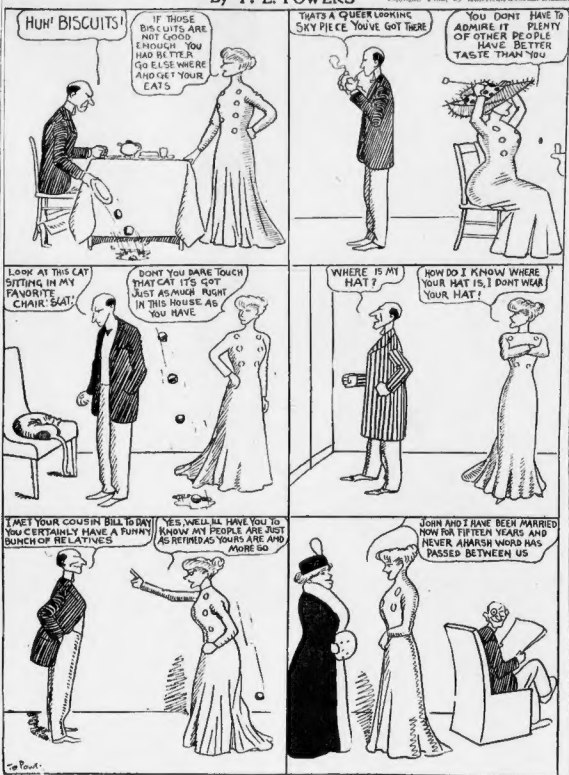

I speak from bitter experience, as I am a mother of eight children, and I know how often I have given grief and worry to my little girl, today her feet are so sore, that she has to wear shoes for only two or three years and today she is eighteen and is still a burden.

A. C. K.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
As a downtrodden woman I want to express my gratitude to Mr. William L. Hearst for his manly stand upon the vitæ question of equal suffrage. The suffragettes in England are condemned, perhaps by many women in this country, but they have no powerful champion to fight the cause. With such an influence for good as Mr. Hearst working for our rights, there is no need for the downtrodden women to use "violent" and to indulge in military methods. Sincerely yours, MRS. B. M. M.
